

Atlantic City Fashion Week Season 12

JACKLYN MCQUARRIE

Atlantic City Fashion Week will return for its 12th season Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 15 to 17, at Showboat Hotel.

The New York-style fashion show is presented by fashionSTYLE Magazine and KingBee Media and highlights collections from local, regional and international designers. About 250 models will showcase collections, beginning with the Student Showcase from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, featuring student and first-time designers from ACIT, Lacey Township High School, The Art Institute and Moore College.

On Friday, Ready to Wear designers and designers from the television show Project Runway will be featured from 7 to 9:30 p.m.. Then, at the same time Saturday, fashions from international avant garde and couture designers will be showcased. An after-party will follow Saturday's event at Showboat's Scarduzios, with free admission for all ticket holders.

In addition to the shows, vendors will be in attendance with fashion and beauty items for purchase. Advance tickets are $30 or $50 for Thursday's Student Showcase, $40 for Friday's Ready to Wear event, and $50, $100 and $350 for Saturday's Couture show. General admission tickets will increase to $75 the day of the show.

Showboat Hotel is located at 801 Boardwalk, Atlantic City. To purchase tickets, go to AtlanticCityFashionWeek.com.